COLUMBUS INDIANA PHILHARMONIC HIRES HANNAH NIEMAN AS MARKETING & COMMUNICATIONS SPECIALIST

January 24, 2019 (Columbus, Ind.) – The Columbus Indiana Philharmonic welcomes Hannah Nieman as Marketing & Communications Specialist to the organization. Hannah will manage all facets of marketing for the Philharmonic.

Hannah comes to Columbus following two years in Muncie, Indiana working as a digital media specialist at the Academy of Model Aeronautics (AMA). While employed with the AMA, Hannah oversaw the digital edition of a monthly publication, coordinated the development and delivery of two e-newsletters and additional publications' emails, produced and edited a biweekly webcast, and developed a digital content management workflow.

“The Columbus Philharmonic is delighted to welcome Hannah to our organization. She brings a wealth of expertise, energy, and passion for the arts to her new position,” Music Director David Bowden said.

Hannah holds a Bachelor of Arts from the University of Indianapolis where she majored in communication with an emphasis in electronic media and a minor in political science. While at the University of Indianapolis, Hannah was heavily involved with UIndyTV, the student-managed television station. She served as the station's operations manager during her senior year, assisting the instructor and overseeing production. In her spare time, Hannah also worked with the University of Indianapolis Theatre Department, often working on the paint crew.

Hannah grew up in Brownstown, Indiana and is happy to return to the area. Her orientation with the Philharmonic began January 10.
